Ecosystem-based management (EBM) can mitigate human impacts on marine ecosystems. Implementing EBM is challenging because multiple stressors interact at different scales and affect different levels of ecological organization.

Why is this research important?

Improving predictions of how multiple stressors affect ecosystem resilience, and helping managers incorporate this knowledge into decision-making, will advance ocean management globally.

Goal of my PhD

Advance ocean management by improving our understanding and assessment of multiple stressors to enhance ecosystem resilience.